1. PURPOSE AND GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF THE CODE OF ETHICS

Hannibal is Multimodal Transport Operator, offering flexible intermodal solutions for national and international freight transport. Combining a fleet of 350 modern trucks with over 150 weekly trains from and towards the main Italian and European destinations, Hannibal provides customers with socially and environmentally sustainable transport solutions, designed to support maritime and continental freight transport businesses, bringing the ship to the customers' door. As part of the CSI Group, Hannibal plays an important role in the market, in economic development and in the well-being of the communities in which it operates.

The success of the CSI Group is based on the commitment, skills and talent of its employees. CSI Group employees respect and value each other and understand that they need each other to reach their full potential. Although the CSI Group operates across different locations with different conditions and challenges, the core values do not change. These values unite, guide and empower the Company and its employees, defining its identity, what it believes in and how it conducts its business.

The Code of Ethics is inspired by the main regulations, guidelines and documents at national and international level on the subject of corporate social responsibility and corporate governance, Human and Environmental Rights, such as, by way of example, the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, Italian Law 977/1967 and decent work standards established by the ILO (International Labour Organisation) conventions.

The Code presupposes compliance with the regulations in force, as well as the close observance of the procedures of the Group and of the individual Companies.

In particular, the Code of Ethics also introduces and makes binding the principles and rules of conduct relevant to the prevention of crimes indicated in Legislative Decree no. 231 of 8 June 2001 on the administrative responsibility of entities. The Code of Ethics therefore constitutes a fundamental component of the Organisational, Management and Monitoring Model for the prevention, where present, of the offences referred to in the aforementioned Decree.

Hannibal requires the addressees of the Code of Ethics to adhere to the ethical principles and rules of conduct set out in this Code, as well as to comply with the law, the applicable regulations and the procedures of the Group and of the individual Companies.

Through this Code of Ethics, the Company undertakes to ensure:

- maximum dissemination of the Code among employees and all those with whom it has business relations, by displaying it in areas accessible to all staff and by publication on the Company's website;
- the expansion and updating of the Code in order to adapt it to the evolution of civil and organisational awareness, as well regulations relevant to the Code itself;
- the provision of every possible educational tool and clarification for the interpretation and implementation of the ethical principles and rules of conduct indicated in the Code;
- the carrying out of checks on any reports of violations of that which is stated in the Code, in the procedures of the Group and of the individual Companies, as well as in the law and applicable regulations;
- the assessment of the facts and consequent implementation, in the event of an ascertained violation, of appropriate sanctions;
- the non-occurrence of possible retaliation in any form for providing information about possible violations of the Code, of Group and individual Company procedures, and of applicable laws and regulations;
- the forecasting and imposition, with consistency, impartiality and uniformity, of penalties proportionate to the violations that may occur, and that are found to be justified and in accordance with the regulations in force and the provisions on the regulation of labour relations.

2. HANNIBAL'S RESPONSIBILITIES

2.1 OBLIGATIONS FOR ALL EMPLOYEES

Each employee is required to familiarise themselves with the contents of the Code, the procedures of the Group and individual Companies, as well as the regulations in force, which govern the activities carried out within the scope of his or her duties.

Hannibal employees are required to:

- diligently observe the provisions of the Code of Ethics and refrain from conduct contrary to the Code;
- contact their superiors if they need clarification on how to apply them;
- promptly report to their superiors or to the Procurement & Legal Affairs Department, or to do so by e-mail, as defined in the Whistleblowing procedure, on possible violations of Group and/or individual Company procedures, of the principles of the Code and of the 231 Model, collaborating with the structures responsible for verifying them, where present, as provided for in this Code.

2.2 OBLIGATIONS FOR THE HEADS OF COMPANY DEPARTMENTS

Each Head of Corporate Departments is obliged to:

- set an example to their employees and colleagues with their own behaviour;
- direct employees to comply with the Code and the procedures of the Group and of the individual Companies, urging them to point out problems regarding themselves and their compliance;
- work to ensure that employees understand that compliance with the Code and with Group and individual Company procedures is an essential part of the quality of their work;
- carefully select, in relation to their specific duties, employees and external collaborators in order to prevent the assignment of tasks to persons who are not fully reliable in their commitment to comply with the rules of the Code;
- promptly report to the Procurement & Legal Affairs Department, or to do so by email and letter, as defined in the Whistleblowing procedure, on its own findings, as well as on information provided by employees on possible cases of violation of the rules;
- take immediate corrective action when required;
- never engage in or tolerate acts of retaliation.

2.3 MAKING ETHICAL DECISIONS

In order to make ethically sound decisions, two basic questions must receive a positive response before any action is taken:

1) Can I do that?

Does the action being considered comply, in form and substance, with the law and with Group and individual Company procedures?

2) Should I do that?

Is the action being considered in line with Hannibal's core values and reputation?

When the Addressees of this Code of Ethics answer these questions, they must ensure that they have a clear understanding of all the relevant facts, consider their duties towards the interested parties, and consider possible alternatives. In addition, if they have any doubts they should seek advice from the appropriate persons, including the heads of the Procurement & Legal Affairs Department and the HR, Development & Industrial Relations Department. While this Code helps in making a wide variety of decisions, you should consult Group and individual Company procedures, as well as the 231 Model, if any, for detailed information on what you can and should do.

3. ADRESSEES

The set of ethical principles and rules of conduct set out in this Code must inspire the activities of all those who operate, internally or externally, within the sphere of Company activities.

This must be done in compliance with the regulations in force and with the procedures of the Group and of the individual Companies.

All Company activities must be carried out with diligence, commitment and professional rigour. Each employee must provide professional input commensurate with their assigned responsibilities and skills and must act in a manner that protects the prestige of Hannibal.

The principles, values and standards of conduct contained in the Code of Ethics are shared within the CSI Group and third parties. The Code of Ethics is available and accessible to all employees, those who collaborate with Hannibal and its stakeholders, and can be found on the CSI Group website and the corporate portal.

The adoption of the Code of Ethics, moreover, is made known to external parties who collaborate with Hannibal (external collaborators, consultants, customers, suppliers, etc.) through specific contractual clauses.

The CSI Group promotes the implementation of training courses for its employees aimed at fostering a full understanding of the principles and rules laid down in this Code.

6.2 OVERSEEING THE CODE OF ETHICS

The Board of Directors is responsible for updating this Code, at the proposal of the Chairman of Hannibal, the CEO of LSCT and/or Sogemar, the Board of Statutory Auditors, or as a result of any inadequacies reported to the Procurement & Legal Affairs Department and/or reports received through the channels described in the Whistleblowing procedure.

The body responsible for overseeing the application of the Code is the Procurement & Legal Affairs Department, which coordinates with the other departments and bodies responsible for the correct implementation of the Code of Ethics.

6.3 INTERNAL MONITORING SYSTEM

Hannibal disseminates at all levels a culture characterised by awareness of the internal monitoring system, which sets the guidelines for and verifies the completeness, functionality and adequacy of CSI Group procedures.

The internal monitoring system defines the set of all instruments necessary or useful for directing, managing and verifying the risks connected with business activity with the aim of ensuring compliance with the laws and procedures of the CSI Group and of the individual Companies, protecting the Company's assets, efficiently managing its activities and providing proper and complete management, accounting and financial data.

The responsibility for implementing an effective internal monitoring system is shared at every level of the organisational structure; consequently, all Hannibal employees, within the scope of their functions, are responsible for the definition and proper functioning of the monitoring system.

Failure to comply with the rules of conduct contained in the Code constitutes a breach of the Code and is a serious breach of contract.

Failure to comply with the principles and rules of the Code may result, depending on the case, in the application of disciplinary measures and/or sanctions or termination of the existing employment or commercial contract.

In particular:

- for Hannibal employees, violation constitutes a breach of the obligations arising from the employment contract and/or a disciplinary offence that may prejudice the continuity of employment and also lead to actions for damages;
- for Directors and Statutory Auditors, violation of the rules of the Code may result in the adoption, by the Board of Directors and the Board of Statutory Auditors respectively, of measures proportionate to the seriousness or recidivism or the degree of guilt, up to and including revocation of the mandate for just cause to be proposed to the Shareholders' Meeting;
- for Addressees who are not Employees, observance of the Code is a prerequisite for the continuation of the professional/collaborative relationship in existence with the CSI Group. Therefore, violation of the rules of the Code may constitute a breach of contractual obligations, with all the consequences of the law that follow, including with regard to the termination of the contract and/or assignment, and may lead to compensation for damages suffered by Hannibal or the companies of the CSI Group.

6.5 REPORTING VIOLATIONS OF THE CODE OF ETHICS
